HERBERT CARL BUYS MARBLESTONE STORE BUILDING

Another important real estate transfer on Wall street was made Tuesday when Herbert Carl purchased the two story brick building located on Wall, Fair and North streets now occupied by the Marblestone clothing store. Mrs. Marblestone a few days ago sold out the entire stock of the clothing store to A. Tish of New York city, who will close out the stock by the first of April, when Mr. Carl will take possession.

Mr. Carl was out of town today and it was impossible to learn what he proposes to do with the property. Outside other business interests, Mr. Carl conducts the Carl millinery store in the Rose-Gorman-Rose store at the head of Wall street.

The Marblestone property is one of the best situated business properties in the uptown section of the city, being directly on both trolley lines and occupying the entire corner and facing on Wall, North and Fair streets. Since Mrs. Marblestone's clothing business there have been several local people interested in purchasing the property for business purposes as well as at least one out of town concern.

11TH HOUR CABINET SHIFTS POSSIBLE

By Telegram to The Freeman.
St. Augustine, Fla., Feb. 23.—Having put the bulk of his cabinet vesters behind him, temporarily at least, President-elect Harding planned today to devote the biggest part of his remaining time in Florida to preparation of his inaugural address, now but eight days from delivery. Only four real working days remain of the President-elect's vacation in the south. He will probably start north the first of next week and from then until he is inaugurated he will be so much on the move that there will be little time for uninterrupted work.

Senator Harding has masses of data on most of the subjects which he will touch upon in his address. These have been left with him by visitors and some of the advisers with whom he has conferred during his month's sojourn in the south. It is not expected that Senator Harding will attempt to go deeply into the international situation in his address, leaving that to be dealt with at a later time, probably in a special message to the new sixty-seventh congress, which will assemble early in April.

So far as surface indications point in St. Augustine, the cabinet is closed up. There is one possible exception—that of the labor portfolio for which James J. Davis of Pennsylvania is the foremost candidate.

It was learned today, however, that friends of James S. Duncan, of the Granite Cutters, who comes from Massachusetts, have increased their efforts in his behalf and if there is a change between now and March 1 in the cabinet which Senator Harding has tentatively selected, it is believed it will most likely take place in this department.

The labor portfolio has been the bitterly contested place among the ten Labor leaders and union heads have filed with one another in backing up the appointment of this or that candidate and many of these have protested against Davis' selection on the ground that Davis has been out of labor executive ranks so long that he can no longer be considered a "labor appointment."

Senator Harding has listened patiently to these arguments and has kept his own counsel here.

Herbert Hoover's appointment as secretary of commerce is regarded as settled by the former food administrator's friends in the north that he would not enter the cabinet. Senator Harding, himself, while he has not officially announced that his cabinet is complete, nevertheless has indicated his labors about finished. However, within the next eight days conditions may arise which may make changes necessary. In talking with callers recently, the president-elect reiterated that most of his predecessors have had eleven or four officers and have been forced to make shifts at the last moment.

Senator Harding said he had been told that this was true particularly of the Roosevelt, Taft and Wilson administrations.

EMERGED AT NIGHT.

In Effort to Make Time to Cross—Constant Air Mail Test.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Chicago, Feb. 23.—While Pilot C. Smith of the first westbound plane to pass through Chicago in the transcontinental air mail race, was preparing to hop off from Maywood, Ill. today, word was received that the westbound plane passed over the city, Iowa, at 6:30 o'clock and was expected here before long.

The westbound plane left New York at 6:22 a. m. yesterday, arriving here at 1:15 yesterday afternoon. It was a very comfortable and the trip was not uneventful with the exception of a few clouds.

The westbound plane is piloted by Lieutenant John H. Rogers. Rogers flew only by compass, by the stars and by the sun. He was flying from Chicago, Iowa, to Omaha, after dark last night and then out for Chicago.

GUARDING CITY AGAINST TYPHUS

The outbreak of typhus fever in New York city which was brought to this country by immigrants has led to the New York health authorities notifying surrounding cities whenever an immigrant who was admitted to the country signified an intention of going to the city. Kingston is notified of that fact, also, but as far as known no incoming immigrants have come to this city from New York. The typhus fever situation is so serious in New York that a local physician has requested that the police board take pains in fumigating the ambulances so that no typhus germs may be carried. As a matter of fact, however, the ambulance never conveys a patient to any of the local hospitals unless at the request of the attending physician. The only other cases carried are emergency cases such as that of Tuesday evening when a man dislocated his shoulder by a fall on a walk. There are no typhus cases in Kingston.

BAR TYPHUS FROM CITY HOSPITALS

Kingston City Hospital Also Declines To Receive Sleeping Sickness Patients—Both Diseases Too Contagious and They Spread Too In Time For City To Prepare To Take Care of Such Cases.

The Kingston City Hospital and the Benedictine Sanitarium have notified Mayor Canfield, as president of the board of health, that patients afflicted with certain diseases cannot be admitted to these institutions owing to their highly contagious or infectious nature and suggest that now is the time for the city to make provisions for taking care of such cases if the diseases reach Kingston. The Kingston City Hospital bars those with typhus fever and sleeping sickness while the Sanitarium confines its refusal to typhus only. Both diseases have assumed serious proportions in New York City and some other localities.

The letters to the mayor follow:

February 22, 1921.
Hon. Palmer A. Canfield,
President of the Board of Health,
Kingston, New York.

Dear Sir:

The staff of the Kingston City Hospital at a meeting today viewed with alarm the possible introduction into this city of typhus fever and encephalitis lethargica or sleeping sickness, and as these diseases are so contagious a nature that they are prohibitive of care in this institution, I have been requested to inform you and the police, the superintendent of the poor and all physicians that all medical cases must be thoroughly examined by a hospital physician before being admitted as a patient. This is done to guard all other patients against these infections. The staff recommends that now is the time for the Board of Health to provide suitable accommodations for any emergency that may arise.

I am,
Yours respectfully,
A. A. STERN, M. D., Secretary.

February 20, 1921.
Hon. Palmer Canfield,
President Board of Health,
Kingston, N. Y.

Your Honor:

Noting the increased number of cases of typhus fever in New York city and surrounding territory with alarm, we are asking that you send no cases of this disease to the Benedictine Sanitarium.

That no cases be transferred by the ambulance without a diagnosis.

That you take suitable steps to take care of any cases that may arise in our city or vicinity outside of the hospitals and populated areas.

Yours truly,
SISTER ANASTASIA,
Superintendent Benedictine Sanitarium.

WOOD TO OCCUPY 282 WALL STREET

Charles S. Wood, the hat and shoe dealer at 287 and 289 Wall street, at the corner of John street, for a long period of years, has leased the large and well lighted store at 282 Wall street, in the Ulster County Savings Institution building, and will move there about April 1st. As will be seen by an advertisement of Mr. Wood in another column of this issue, he is disposing of all of his stock at a reduction of from 25 to 50 per cent in order that he will not be compelled to remove his stock to his new quarters. The New York board of water supply now occupies the store in the Ulster County Savings Institution as an office for the corporation's central department of New York city.

Bridge Trading Company.
Some of the conductors on the trolley cars report that the public seems to be growing tired of buying tickets and that the proportion of cash fares to tickets is growing smaller. Where the conductors referred about half and half when the new fare card went into effect, there are now said to turn about 60 percent of the collections.

LABOR POLICIES BEING FORMED

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Feb. 23.—Representatives of 109 international unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor met here today to formulate and approve the program of organized labor for the coming year. They met in executive session with the executive council of the Federation which submitted for their consideration an outline of the stand which organized labor will take in the present economic and industrial crisis.

It is understood the program dealt in detail with plans for increasing the power and membership of the unions and broadening their scope, with proposed legislation affecting organized labor and with the campaign against the open shop. It is expected the conference will take a determined stand against any reduction of the present wage scales or lengthening of the present hours of labor.

CRAVED EXCITEMENT.

And Nurse Got It After She Started Three Fires.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Feb. 23.—Miss Mary J. Hickey, 34, a nurse, whose home is in Brooklyn, craved excitement and got it.

Impelled by her desire she started three separate fires in the dental parlors of Dr. H. C. Parker, of Brooklyn. Today, she is being held, charged with arson.

"I don't know what made me do it," sobbed Miss Hickey, an attractive young woman with brown hair and hazel eyes.

"Something flashed through my mind that made me want excitement, and well, I got it."

Miss Hickey, who says she is a graduate of a Boston college of dental surgery, succeeded in routing the members of thirty families into the street by starting the fires. Damage was estimated at $5,000.

Miss Hickey was questioned by the police for eight hours before she admitted her guilt.

DEBS ISOLATED.

Authorities Refuse to Let Even His Lawyer See Him.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 23.—Eugene V. Debs, Socialist leader, serving ten years in Atlantic penitentiary for violation of the espionage law and who has been barred from seeing his friends because of bitter criticisms of President Wilson is the victim of a spiteful vengeance of a pitiful administration, according to Samuel Castleton, his attorney.

Castleton was denied the right to see his client under recent order of federal prisons, for the first time Tuesday. He sharply attacked Dickerson today and said he refused to believe Attorney General Palmer will assume responsibility for this latest barbaric blunder of his subordinate.

WOUNDED WIFE

And Killed Self Following Drinking Bout.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
East Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 23.—Following a drinking bout with some friends in his home here last night, Peter Gurski, 28, shot his wife, Martha, 21, and then turned the gun on himself. The three year old son of the couple was still asleep in the room where the tragedy occurred when deputy sheriffs reached the house. Gurski was dead and the woman was unconscious. She was taken to a Rochester hospital where she was said this morning to have a chance of recovery.

Coster Lost to Moore.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Feb. 23.—Roy Moore of St. Paul, who was recently charged with using foul tactics in a local contest, Tuesday afternoon convinced a large crowd in the Flower Sporting Club in New York that he is a clean boxer by outpointing Benny Coster in a mainly manner in fifteen rounds. The judges' decision, which was in favor of the westerner, was received with cheers. Moore had his opponent in a bad way in the last few rounds, but Coster managed to weather the storm. Each weighed 120 pounds. A number of Coster's friends and relatives from Kingston were present.

MASONIC TRIBUTE TO WASHINGTON

William D. Bosler Delivers Patriotic and Instructive Address to Members of No. 10 Lodge—Judge Clearwater Tells of Washington's Beliefs.

Nearly four hundred Masons were present at the Washington's Birthday party held Tuesday evening at the lodge rooms of Kingston Lodge, No. 10, F. & A. M. Right Worshipful Brother A. T. Clearwater introduced Brother William D. Bosler, the principal speaker of the evening, who gave a most interesting address on "Washington, the Man and Mason."

Mr. Bosler is a member of the bar of New York and Connecticut, and was an assistant district attorney of New York under William Travers Jerome. He is the author of various sketches on historical, political and sociological subjects. He is a member of Charity Lodge, F. and A. M., 727, New York city.

Mr. Bosler said:

We have met tonight to celebrate the birthday of a man whose memory we cherish, whose statesmanship stands pre-eminent in the history of the world; whose military genius though equalled by many has never been surpassed; whose Christian life and Masonic virtues have left an indelible impression upon the pages of American history that time will not efface nor tradition blot out.

It is fitting at this time that we renew our allegiance to the sentiments of patriotism that inspired him and re-dedicate our lives and ideals to the principles that have given to him an enduring place in the history of all mankind.

The world is passing through a grave crisis. Democracy stood at the cross-ways of civilization three years ago and America answered the roll call of humanity upon the battlefields of Europe and settled for all time the doctrine of the divine right of kings.

With the struggle ended and with the question of an international peace as yet undetermined, our people find new and greater problems facing them in the government of our nation.

Sinister forces of discontent and unrest raise their heads inveighing against our institutions, seeking to subvert our citizenry, with the avowed purpose and intention of overthrowing by force the pillars of the structure of government founded by our illustrious forefathers.

These elements of destruction under the guise of political parties, calling themselves Socialists, Communists, and Non-partisans, are growing more militant in their demands, threatening to attempt to substitute in place of a government of equality under the law, a system of tyranny, based upon the false philosophy of Karl Marx; a "dictatorship of the proletariat"; a mad dream of fantastic internationalism, that would destroy the moral and social fabric of all civilization.

Only a few months ago at Masonic high twelve a bomb was exploded in Wall street, within a few feet of the spot where General Washington took his oath of office as the first president of the United States, sworn in by a Grand Master of Masons, upon a Masonic Bible; in the shadow of the statue of that great American who made freedom a beacon light to illuminate a darkened world; an altar for all humanity to gather and worship the sacred ideals of liberty and justice.

It was no misfortune or accident that caused that catastrophe. It was pre-conceived in the minds of those who hold no respect for our free institutions and dreamed as a warning of the approach of the spectre of red radicalism in the program of "direct action" to destroy the institutions of Americanism.

The "red" radical movement, spreading its tentacles over the world under the guise of communistic dogma and philosophies has thrown down the gauntlet of defiance to civilization and it is for America to accept the challenge and taken it up.

The doctrine of Anarchism has been heralded by the hand of the Eternal Architect, and we must move forward in the struggle for God, Country and Home, guided and inspired by the faith of those who through the darkness and the storm, led the way from the Old World over uncharted seas to brave the hardships and perils of the unknown New World, by a faith that did not shrink and led by the pillars of the great old land of the children of Israel out of the bondage of Egypt into the Promised Land.

One hundred and twenty years have passed since Washington retired from the office of the president of the United States and our nation has grown from thirteen small colonies struggling to maintain themselves in an inextinguishable union to forty-eight states and territories; from a population of less than four millions of people to over one hundred and twenty millions; from a feeble republic unable to protect itself from attacks of the outside world to a nation that stands today as a world power holding within its grasp the destinies and future of all of civilization; from a country that was the playground of the world to a nation that stands today as a world power.

NEAR EAST CONFAB PUT OVER DAY

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Feb. 23.—The Near East Conference, which is trying to find a way to end warfare in the old Turkish Empire, met with further obstacles today. When the conference met at St. James Palace to hear the joint Turkish case from the delegates representing both the Nationalists and Constantinople governments, the Turks were present, but after an hour's sitting the conference broke up and it was announced that the Turks would be heard tomorrow.

The following communique was issued after today's meeting:

"Toward the end of the Constantinople delegation and Bekir Sami Bey, head of the Ankara delegation, have outlined the general principles for the re-establishment of peace. The premiers have requested them to formulate their views more concretely upon the points in the treaty of Serres which they desire modified."

BACKS WILSON PROMISE STORY

Von Brockdorff-Rantzau Says He, Too, Was Offered Loan By Wilson Agent If Germany Would Sign Allied Peace.

(By Frank E. Mason.)

(International News Service Staff Correspondent.)

Copyright, 1921, by International News Service, Inc.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Berlin, Feb. 23.—The declaration of Dr. Matthias Erzberger, former German minister of finance that President Wilson sent two emissaries to Berlin to promise American credits in the form of a loan to Germany, if Germany would accept the Allied peace terms, was confirmed today by Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau, former German foreign minister.

Ellis Dresel, United States Commissioner to Germany, was named by Dr. Erzberger as one of the agents of President Wilson. When Mr. Dresel was asked about the incident, he replied:

"I have nothing to say to the press upon this subject."

Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau was foreign minister at the time Mr. Dresel came to Berlin in the spring of 1919. The foreign minister and Dr. Erzberger were bitter political opponents and it was Erzberger who broke down Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau's opposition to his policies and virtually accomplished the signing of the peace treaty.

In his exclusive interview with the International News Service confirming Erzberger's statements, Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau said that Mr. Dresel came to him with the same proposition he had laid before Erzberger.

"When the history is written of the incidents of the armistice and the preliminaries to the peace treaty, it will be necessary to consider many personalities who on official and pretended official commissions visited official and unofficial Germans. History will develop that these more or less authorized agents exercised influence neither in the interests of Germany nor of world peace."

"It is known that Erzberger and I were political opponents. Nevertheless, I must confirm that what Dr. Erzberger said in his interview with Mr. Dresel is entirely correct. Whether Mr. Dresel was directly commissioned by President Wilson I could not then confirm but at least Mr. Dresel attempted to create the impression that he came to Berlin upon an official mission."

"Mr. Dresel made statements to me about President Wilson's friendly attitude towards Germany if Germany would sign the peace treaty similar to those made by Erzberger. I did not consider Dresel's statements sufficient to make the slightest change in my political viewpoint. On the contrary, I informed Mr. Dresel that Germany was determined to negotiate on the basis of the fourteen points and I, as director of Germany's foreign affairs, must refuse to change our basis on either private or official statements."

"Mr. Dresel spoke in mysterious and ominous intonations as if he were very interested in negotiating German's continued and ascertaining how Germany would react to a peace by force. Therefore, I officially and privately advised the Germans to prudence and avoid giving Mr. Dresel the impression that Germany would submit to any form of a dictated peace."

TOLSTOY WIKED BY IDLENESS

Letter Written by Russian Prisoner of Conscience Life Led by Idlest Man of Moscow.

The Vostok Echo prints the following letter by Tolstoy, written in 1904, with the remark that it has never before been published except in Russian, and that its value lies in the fact that as early as 1904 Tolstoy had about made up his mind to do what he did in 1910—leave home and live the life of a peasant. The letter reads in part:

"I am living in the country, involuntarily according to a new method. I go to bed early, get up early, write very little but work a great deal, either making boots or mowing hay. I see with joy (or possibly it only seems to me like joy) that there is something up in my family. They do not condemn me; as a matter of fact, they seem ashamed of themselves.

"What miserable creatures we are and how we have all gone astray. There are a great many of us here, my own children and the children of Kuzminksky, and nobody does a thing but gulp down food. They are all big and strong, yet they do nothing. People in the village are at work. My children eat and make their clothes and their rooms dirty and that is all. Everything is done for them by somebody else, yet they do nothing for anybody. And worst of all, they seem to feel that it is as it should be. But I have had my own part in building up such a system, and I can never forget it. I feel that for them I am a trouble-maker. But it is clear that they are beginning to see that this cannot go on this way forever."

HAD NO CAUSE FOR WORRY

Under the Circumstances Wash White Could Afford to Live Life of Elegant Leisure.

Senator Gronna of Dakota was analyzing a political opponent at a Dakota luncheon.

"The man is bad through and through," he said. "He's actually so bad that he mistakes badness for goodness—is proud of himself, in short.

"By Jove, he makes me think of Uncle Washington White. As Uncle Wash loafed in front of the postroom one morning the preacher's wife stopped and said:

"Washington, why don't you go to work?"

"Old Wash White, as he puffed serenely on his cornucopia, answered:

"Because Ah got a wife an' children too suppo'."

"That," the preacher's wife impatiently interrupted, "you can't support them by loafing here in front of this postroom."

"Excuse me, Miss Pe'thly," said Wash, with dignity. "Lemme finish mah remark. Wet Ah seems too say is that Ah's got a wife an' children too suppo' me."—Detroit Free Press.

New York Boys' New Game

The game of marbles no longer holds a throne in boyville. Any New York side street where there's enough room between bluecoats and automobile traffic to play, will show you that a new game has taken its place.

"Baldwick checkers," the boys call it. The new game really has the elements of both the old marble shooting days and checkers as played on a board. Checker men are used—red, black, blue—the color makes no difference. A ring is drawn with chalk and the object is to flip your checker men with enough force to knock your contenders out of the ring.

"Early go!" said a future Foul as he gathered up his winnings on Rende street near Broadway, "ain't I got enough lumber here to start me a paper mill?"—New York Sun.

Did He Get It?

Avry was in the habit of asking his uncle for pension. To break him of the habit his uncle told him he would give him pension sometimes, but never when he asked for them. One day Avry went to his uncle's room, got down on the floor and said, "Uncle Albert, I'm just looking for a penny."

NATIVE TRIBE LITTLE KNOWN

Tehuacanas of Patagonia Have Many of the Characteristics of North American Indians.

Many are the strange and interesting native tribes that are found in the Americas. Among the most interesting are the people of the ostrich, who inhabit an almost as yet unknown country, and in language, and character, and race, are altogether distinct from other Indians, says an article on "People of the Ostrich" in Boys' life. They live in the remote and almost legendary regions of the "land of large-footed men"—a land, that like Chili, Peru, Mexico, and northwest South America, keep its story of the existence of a hidden city among the unexplored wilds of their Cordilleras.

The Tehuacanas of Patagonia, that vast peninsular end of South America, are scattered across it, from the Straits of Magellan and the Rio Negro—a territory of over 1,000 miles in length and 300 at its narrowest. A brave, active, athletic people, wonderful horsemen, singularly expert with their weapons and implements, who lead a wandering life, and hunt the wild cattle, the guanaco—and ostriches. For Patagonia is a home of that splendid bird, which was there ages before men crossed its path in the faraway wilds of the interior. To the Tehuacanas, this fine bird is as important in their existence as the guanaco, for they are a race of hunters, and grow but little food for themselves.

PREACHES FROM AN AIRPLANE

Minister With Many Parishes to Cover Parts Modern Means of Travel to Good Use.

No telling church bells announce to the little communities scattered through one section of America's great Northwest the periodic Sunday morning arrival of the region's most conspicuous itinerant evangelist. Instead, they hear the coughing exhaust of an engine, as his airplane speeds down upon the village. Drawn irresistibly by the novelty of the visit, they flock to the airplane, now at rest in a nearby field or meadow. They find the preacher on his feet in the pilot's cockpit of the plane "Sky Pilot," ready to begin his discourse.

Explanation of this strangest of all the airplane's uses is found in the evangelist's decision, some months ago, that the time and energy required for constant travel among distant parishes was seriously curtailing his effectiveness. He decided to defy all objections by adopting aeroplanes and religion. He first subjected himself to a rigorous course of training, and became an accomplished aviator. He then purchased his plane, selecting a four-seater of sporting type. The four-seater, he said, the pilot, and serves as his point when the services are held in the open; the forward cockpit accommodating his two assistants, one of them a song leader.—Chicago Sun.

Apology to the Late

"The celebrated professor died and his coffin was laid out in the churchyard. But in the night he forgot that he was dead, got up and went home."—Baltimore (Charmant).

Meat — then and now

THE most peddler of the old days, who killed in his own live stock, then sold them from the tail of a cart, is gone from our larger towns and cities. He was a pioneer and did good service but he couldn't keep up with his job. Crude methods had to give way to new ideas in sanitation and distribution.

Concentration of population drove the peddler and his wagon out and brought the modern packing industry and the neighborhood retailer in its place.

And the modern packing business stands this: That near the farms and ranches, the centers of live stock production, are packing plants that assemble and manufacture the meat products you use.

That swift and sanitary refrigerators can carry your meat from these packing plants to every part of the country.

Delivers in towns and villages are supplied directly and regularly from these refrigerator cars.

And in cities the refrigerator car is unloaded into branch houses, chilled and sanitary, from which deliveries are made to your meat shop. And all the time the meat is kept so chilled that deterioration is prevented.

Swift & Company's plans and business are co-ordinated, increasing supply and supplying each other, when necessary, so that no section of the country may ever lack its daily meat.

Woman Crave Excitement.
The wife of a very wealthy man was arrested with a group of beauties after a pistol battle with the police, in which the woman was shot in the arm. She is a woman who has traveled, is educated and bears every evidence of refinement. The police say that there are many women of this kind who work with thieves and impostors to their fortune. The call of adventure in the prime motive. In a word on this side, who either actually see them and one woman was taken to hospital in a patrol. All the men had criminal records. The woman is happily married to all appearances, and is a partner of the opium. She says the men and women in her set were dull and that she liked to get out and mingle with the men who lived by their wits and were up ahead of Congressmen parties.—New York Times.

The Chief's Daily Roundup.
One of the daily rounds in the life of a chief in any of the large New York hotels is his morning monotony. Before he touches food, his hands are washed, and his nails are cleaned, cut and polished.

The job is not given to a valet girl, maid, or even a hotel policeman. He is always on hand during the day; should the chief need anything, the waiter will hand him the needed article, as he is there for that purpose.

Chiefs are precious these days; many of the French ones—unable to get their daily battle of who—have gone back to France, where the thought of prohibition can still be treated as a joke, though even in France there are hard cases even in France there are hard cases at our expense.—Popular Science Monthly.

To Talk by Airplane.
Aerial postmen in San Francisco are then for the first to make use of the airplane to conduct a prisoner to jail, via the automobile garage.

Rich Entertainment.
In the days when the Roman Empire was at its height, if you want to see the ordinary department of an emperor's entertainment, you would find a man in a white robe and a sword at his side, and a woman in a white robe and a sword at her side, and a man in a white robe and a sword at his side, and a woman in a white robe and a sword at her side.

WORK AMONG JEWISH FARMERS

For 1920 Described My Report of Ulster-Sullivan Activities of Agricultural Society—Boarding Business Kites Out Income of Many.

The annual report of the Jewish Agricultural and Industrial Society for 1920, has just been issued and is of local interest because of its work in Ulster and Sullivan counties. Under the caption, "Ulster-Sullivan office," Gabriel Davidson of New York, the general manager, reports: "The office in Ellenville began functioning at the beginning of this year, with David B. Alcott as manager. The conditions in Sullivan and Ulster counties are such as to give rise to many perplexing problems. From the standpoint of the aesthete, the country is unimpressive. Its landscape is unattractively beautiful. Its climate is healthful and invigorating. It is but natural that such a section within close proximity of New York city and already harboring within its confines a large Jewish population—with the opportunities for social and religious life that it affords—should prove an increasingly attractive spot for prospective Jewish farmers. It is, of course, natural, too, that the region should have developed into a popular and flourishing summer resort.

"Unhappily the country is but ill adapted to farming. The soil, more in spots, is barren, the growing season is short and the precipitation is unevenly distributed. Towns and villages are small and few, the roads are bad and the markets in consequence are poor. The farmers have therefore not only agriculturally but normally a steep uphill road to travel, and as a means of augmenting their incomes, combine boarding house keeping with farming. As the boarding business prospered, it gradually developed into a thriving industry, all the more so because of the difficulty to make farming profitable. It is just this combination of farming with boarding that creates many complicated problems, difficult of solution. Unfortunately, the farming and boarding seasons occur at the same time, and under the stress and strain of exacting demands the farmer is reluctantly obliged to neglect his agricultural duties. It is our aim to help these boarding-house farmers meet out of whom are receptive, work out a plan of farming that will dovetail with the boarding business and that the two will be complementary and not conflicting. There are also many farmers whose houses are small, to whom the boarding and rooming business, with the catering that it requires, is a means of making a livelihood. It is the time when they can abandon it altogether. Our efforts are directed to help these farmers place their agricultural operations on a paying basis and so go from being underpaid farmers to being successful ones.

"Probably the most difficult task falling to the lot of this office is the protection of farm buyers against the machinations of unscrupulous estate agents and rapacious land speculators. The very attractiveness of this section makes it a splendid field for the manipulation of this unsavory breed. Not only are the farms sold at highly inflated prices but on terms that are impossible of fulfillment. Daily or eternal vigilance can we hope to combat this evil. Some have been put up at important railroad stations advertising the office and publicity given to it through the medium of the local press. In this way it is hoped to make this office an information bureau for forwarding names of farm buyers and an agency for the prevention of fraud in farm purchases.

MANY accumulations of property and money, built up by a lifetime of endeavor to provide for the future comfort and protection of a family, are quickly dissipated or lost through the inexperience or folly of the very ones they were designed to protect.

And this happens in spite of existing means which, if properly employed, would conserve these estates.

To protect that which you may leave, it is essential that you make a will, definitely setting forth your intentions, and that you appoint an executor and trustee who can competently carry out its provisions.

This Company offers special facilities for such a service—and its resources and experience are a guarantee of sound and responsible administration.

You will be interested in reading a message entitled "Making Money and Making Family Provision," published by associated trust companies of the United States and appearing in the February, 1921, issue of the following magazines: Scribner's, Harper's, Atlantic Monthly, Century, Review of Reviews, World's Work, American Cosmopolitan, System, and the February 21st issue of The Outlook.

ten months since he took office he spent more than half of his time in the field, that he considered 1,075 inquiries, either at his headquarters, through mail or by telephone, furthermore, that he held meetings the total attendance at which was over 1,200 farmers. This is an obvious indication of the inherent desire of the residents, whether boarding-house keepers or not, to increase their farming operations.

"It may be true in a measure that these districts are not purely agricultural, our activities there are not solely of an agricultural character. It is a farming, nevertheless, because all boarding-house keepers practice farming to some extent, many to a very large extent. Referred to from a broader humanitarian standpoint, the work serves beneficial ends. The mountain boarding house, and more so the "rooming house," is a useful institution in that it places a summer vacation within reach of the city resident of modest means."

The Prodigal Village

By Irving Bacheller

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I—In the village of Blingville, a poor widow, Mrs. Bling, who had been married to a poor man, had been left with a young son, a boy of twelve years, and a daughter, a girl of ten years. The widow was a good woman, and her son and daughter were good children. They were poor, but they were happy. The widow was a good woman, and her son and daughter were good children. They were poor, but they were happy.

CHAPTER II—The village of Blingville was a poor village. The people were poor, but they were happy. The widow was a good woman, and her son and daughter were good children. They were poor, but they were happy.

CHAPTER III—The village of Blingville was a poor village. The people were poor, but they were happy. The widow was a good woman, and her son and daughter were good children. They were poor, but they were happy.

CHAPTER FOUR

In which Mr. Sneed and Other Working Men Receive a Lesson in True Democracy.

Next morning, Mr. Blinginsop went to the village of Blingville. He was a good man, and he was a good worker. He was a good man, and he was a good worker.

"God bless us! Ye look like a lawyer," said the boy.

"I'm a new man! Cut out the blacksmith shop an' the booze an' the bums."

"May the good God love an' help ye! I heard about it."

"Ye did? It's all over the town. God bless a lively foot, man. The Shepherd clapped his hands when I told him. Ye got to go straight, my little buck. All eyes are on ye now. Come up an' see the boy. It's his birthday!"

Mr. Blinginsop was deeply moved by the greeting of the little Shepherd, who kissed his cheek and said that he had often prayed for him.

"If you ever get lonely, come and sit with me and we'll have a talk and a game of dominoes," said the boy.

Mr. Blinginsop got strength out of the wonderful spirit of Bob Moran and as he swung his ax that day, he was happier than he had been in many years. Men and women who passed in the street said, "How do you do, Mr. Blinginsop? I'm glad to see you."

Even the dog Christmas watched his master with a look of pride and approval. Now and then, he barked gleefully and scampered up and down the sidewalk.

The Shepherd was fourteen years old. On his birthday, from morning till night, people came to his room bringing little gifts to remind him of their affection. No one in the village of Blingville was so much beloved.

Judge Crocker came in the evening with ice-cream and a frosted cake. While he was there, a committee of citizens sought him out to confer with him regarding conditions in Blingville.

"There's more money than ever in the place, but there never was so much misery," said the chairman of the committee.

"We have learned that money is not the thing that makes happiness," Judge Crocker began. "With every one busy at high wages, and the banks overflowing with deposits, we felt safe. We ceased to produce the necessities of life in a sufficient quantity. We forgot that all important things are food, fuel, clothes and comfortable housing—not money. Some of us went money mad. With a feeling of optimism we refused to work at all, save when we felt like it. We bought diamond rings and set by the fire looking at them. The roof began to leak and our plumbing went wrong. People going to buy meat found the shops closed. Roads that might have been saved by timely repairs will have to be largely replaced. Plumbing systems have been ruined by neglect. With all its money, the town was near as wretched."

Mr. Sneed, who was a member of the committee, stily turned the ring on his finger so that the diamond was concealed. He cleared his throat and remarked, "We mechanics had more than we could do on work already contracted."

"You worked eight hours a day and refused to work any longer. You were legally within your rights, but your position was unbecomingly and even unbecomingly and unbecomingly."

"I should call for the doctor and he should say, 'I'm sorry, but I have done my eight hours' work today and I can't help you.' Then suppose you should say, 'No, thank you, I'm tired. I've done my eight hours' work today and I can't help you.' Then suppose you should say, 'No, thank you, I'm tired. I've done my eight hours' work today and I can't help you.'"

"I suppose I was trying to run the town, when my eight hours' work had expired. I should have said, 'I'm tired. I've done my eight hours' work today and I can't help you.'"

"You were trying to run the town, when my eight hours' work had expired. I should have said, 'I'm tired. I've done my eight hours' work today and I can't help you.'" make a great mistake in thinking that you are the workers of the country and that the rest of us are your natural enemies. In America, we are all workers!

The little man is a mere parasite and not at heart an American. Generally, I work fifteen hours a day.

"This little lad has been knitting night and day for the soldiers without hope of reward and has spent his savings for yarn. There isn't a doctor in Blingville who isn't working eighteen hours a day. I met a minister this afternoon who hasn't had ten hours of sleep in a week—he's been so busy with the sick, and the dying and the dead. He is a nurse, a friend, a comforter to any one who needs him. No charge for overtime. My God! Are we all going mad? Are you any better than he is, or I am, or than the doctors who have been killing themselves with overwork? Do you dare to tell me that prosperity is any excuse for idleness in this land of ours, if one's help is needed?"

Judge Crocker's voice had been calm, his manner dignified. But the last sentences had been spoken with a quiet sternness and with his long, bony forefinger pointing straight at Mr. Sneed. The other members of the committee clapped their hands in hearty approval. Mr. Sneed smiled and brushed his trousers.

"We're all off our balance a little, but what is to be done now?"

"We must quit our plumbing and carpentering and lawyering and banking and some of us must quit merchandising and sitting in the chimney corner and grab our saws and axes and go out into the woods and make some fuel and get it hauled into town," said Judge Crocker. "I'll be one of a party to go to-morrow with my axe. I haven't forgotten how to chop."

The committee thought this a good suggestion. They all rose and started on a search for volunteers, except Mr. Sneed. He tarried, saying to the judge that he wished to consult him on a private matter. It was, indeed, just then, a matter which could not have been more public although, so far, the news of it had traveled in whispers. The judge had learned the facts since his return.

"I hope your plumbing hasn't gone wrong," he remarked with a smile.

"No, it's worse than that," said Mr. Sneed ruefully.

"They bade the little Shepherd good night and went down-stairs where the widow was still at work with her washing, although it was nine o'clock. 'Faithful woman!' the judge exclaimed as they went out on the street. 'What would the world do without people like that? No extra charge for overtime, either.'"

Then, as they walked along, he cunningly paved the way for what he knew was coming.

"Did you notice the face of that boy?" he asked.

"Yes, it's a God's blessing to see a face like that," the judge went on. "Only the pure in heart can have it. The old spirit of youth looks out of his eyes—the spirit of my own youth. When I was fourteen, I think that my heart was as pure as his. So were the hearts of most of the boys I know."

"It isn't so now," said Mr. Sneed. "I fear it isn't," the judge answered. "There's a new look in the faces of the young. Every variety of evil is spread before them on the stage of our little theater. They see it while their characters are in the making, while their minds are like white wax. Everything that touches them leaves a mark or a smudge. It addresses them in the one language they all understand, and for which no dictionary is needed—pictures. The flower of youth fades fast enough. God knows, without the withering knowledge of evil. They say it's good for the boys and girls to know all about life. We shall see!"

Mr. Sneed sat down with Judge Crocker in the handsome library of the house and opened his heart.

He told him of the boy and the girl, of the boy and the girl, of the boy and the girl.

He told him of the boy and the girl, of the boy and the girl, of the boy and the girl.

Eliza Fetta. If he's abed, he'll have to get up, that's all. There's no telling what Fetta has done or may do. Your plumbing is in bad shape, Mr. Sneed. The public sewer is leaking into your cellar and in a case of that kind the less delay the better."

He went into the hall and put on his coat and gloves and took his cane out of the rack. He was sixty-five years of age that winter. It was a bitter night, when even younger men found it a trial to leave the comfort of the fireside. Sneed followed in silence. Indeed, his tongue was shame-bound. For a moment, he knew not what to say.

"I'm much obliged to you," he stammered as they went out into the cold wind. "I—I don't care what it costs, either."

The judge stopped and turned toward him.

"Look here," he said. "Money does not enter into this proceeding or any motive but the will to help a neighbor. In such a matter overtime doesn't count."

They walked in silence to the corner. There Sneed pressed the judge's hand and tried to say something, but his voice failed him.

"Have the boys at my office at ten o'clock to-morrow morning. I want to talk to them," said the kindly old judge as he strode away in the darkness.

CHAPTER FIVE

In Which J. Patterson Bing Buys A Necklace of Pearls.

Meanwhile, the Bings had been having a busy winter in New York. J. Patterson Bing had been elected to the board of a large bank in Wall street. His fortune had more than doubled in the last two years and he was now a considerable factor in finance.

Mrs. Bing had been studying current events and French and the English accent and other social graces every morning, with the best tutors, as she reclined comfortably in her bed-chamber while Phyllis went to sundry shops. Mrs. Crocker had once said, "Mamie Bing has a passion for self-improvement." It was mainly if not quite true.

Phyllis had been "beating the bush" with her mother at teas and dinners and dances and theaters and country house parties in and about the city. The speedometer on the limousine had doubled its mileage since they came to town. They were, it would seem, a tireless pair of hunters. Phyllis' portrait had appeared in the Sunday papers. It showed a face and form of unusual beauty. The supple grace and classic outlines of the latter were touchingly displayed at the dances in many a handsome ballroom. At last, they had found a promising and most eligible candidate in Roger Delane—a handsome, stalwart youth, a year out of college. His father was a well-known and highly successful merchant of an old family which, for generations, had "belonged"—that is to say, it had been a part of the aristocracy of Fifth avenue.

There could be no doubt of this great good luck of theirs—better, indeed, than Mrs. Bing had dared to hope for—the young man having seriously confided his intentions to J. Patterson. But there was one shadow on the glowing prospect; Phyllis had suddenly taken a bad turn. She moped, as her mother put it. She was listless and unhappy. She had lost her interest in the chase, so to speak. She had little heart for the teas and dances and dinner parties. One day her mother returned from a luncheon and found her weeping. Mrs. Bing went at once to the telephone and called for the stomach specialist. He came and made a brief examination and said that it was all due to rich food and late hours. He left some medicine, advised a day or two of rest in bed, charged a hundred dollars and went away. They tried the remedies, but Phyllis showed no improvement. The young man sent American Beauty roses and a graceful note of regret to her room.

"You ought to be very happy," said her mother. "He is a dear."

"I know it," Phyllis answered. "He's just the most adorable creature I ever saw in my life."

"For goodness' sake! What is the matter with you? Why don't you brace up?" Mrs. Bing asked with a note of impatience in her tone. "You act like a dead fish."

Phyllis, who had been lying on the couch, rose to a sitting posture and flung one of the cushions at her mother.

"How can I brace up?" she asked with indignation in her eyes. "Don't you dare to scold me!"

There was a breath of silence in which the two looked into each other's eyes. Many thoughts came flashing into the mind of Mrs. Bing. Why had the girl spoken the word "rest" so bitterly? Little echoes of old history began to fill the silence. She arose and picked up the cushion and threw it on the sofa.

"What a temper!" she exclaimed. "Young lady, you don't seem to know that these days are very precious for you. They will not come again."

Then, in the old fashion of women who have suddenly come out of a moment of affectionate snuff, they fell to weeping in each other's arms. The storm was over when they heard the foot of J. Patterson Bing in the hall. Phyllis fled into the bathroom.

"Hello!" said Mr. Bing as he entered the door. "I've found out what the matter with Phyllis. It's nerves. I don't see the very day of their arrival in Blingville. Sophronia (Mrs. Patterson) Anne called. Sophronia was the oldest and dearest friend that Mamie Bing had in the village. The latter enjoyed her life in New York, but she felt always a thrill of coming back to her big garden and the green trees and the apple trees of Blingville, and to the kindly, sympathetic confidence of Sophronia Anne. She told Sophronia of brilliant success in the charming occupation of newspapering, and of the wonderful sight-seeing and the untimely affliction of Phyllis, now happily past. Then, in a whisper, while Sophronia held up her right hand as a pledge of secrecy, she told of the necklace of which the lucky girl had no knowledge. Now, Mrs. Ames was one of the best of women. People were wont to speak of her, and rightly, as "the salt of the earth." She would do anything possible for a friend. But Mamie Bing had asked too much. Moreover, always it had been understood between them that these half-playful oaths were not to be taken too seriously. Of course, "the fish had to be fed," as Judge Crocker had once put it. By "the fish," he meant that voracious under-life of the village—the curious, silent, merciless, cold-blooded thing which fed on the sins and follies of men and women and which rarely came to the surface to bother anyone.

"The fish are very wise," Judge Crocker used to say. "They know the truth about every one and it's well that they do. After all, they perform an important office. There's many a man and woman who think they're been fooling the fish, but they've only fooled themselves."

And within a day or two, the secrets of the Bing family were swimming up and down the stream of the under-life of Blingville.

(To Be Continued)

Usefulness of Cedar Chests.

Cedar is used in various forms for repelling insects. The chips from pencil factories are distilled for their oil or ground up and sold for use in protecting rugs and woolen garments from moths. The resistance to moths of chests made from Tennessee red cedar and Spanish cedar is widely advertised. But the resistance to insect pests is due not so much to the cedar odor as to the fact that such chests are well made with tight covers and are thus physically exclusive.

Being Always Ready.

BRITISH LABOR RADICALS LOSE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
London, Feb. 23.—The direct actionists—that faction of labor that supports the general strike as the most effective weapon against the government—were overwhelmingly defeated in today's conference of the Trade Union Congress upon the unemployment situation. The delegates, following out the recommendation of the executive committee, outlined a policy of intensive political activity to attain the desired ends.

The specific object of the Trade Union Congress meeting was to decide whether the speeches and promises of members of the cabinet since the convening of parliament, are likely to alleviate the grave unemployment situation.

The adherents of the policy of direct action went into the meeting prepared to make a strong demand for the strike weapon if a majority of the delegates felt that the cabinet was not taking proper measures to reduce unemployment and help the unemployed. They threatened to launch such a drastic crusade as would overshadow even the indemnity issue.

Before the meeting the executive committee conferred and decided to recommend to the congress a resolution declaring that the government's policy is lamentably inadequate, but at the same time to urge the workers to try to gain their ends through political agitation rather than through direct action.

WEALTH COOLED HAMON'S "LOVE."

With Coming of Riches From Oil, Ambition Mellowed Him And He Tried To Cast Off Or Kill With Cruelty Girl Who Lived For Years With Him.

Following in the second and concluding chapter of the story of Clara Smith Hamon, who goes on trial Tuesday next on the charge of having murdered Jake L. Hamon, millionaire oil man, with whom she lived for years.

Ardmore, Okla., Feb. 23.—When his fortune came my happiness ended.

If I could have seen the future unfold on that day we stood together watching his first oil well come in, breathless with joy, I would have prayed to God to end my life then. I would have seen before me the years of horror that followed, the hours that sickened my soul and wrecked my life. Oh, I could never forget them. Like a hideous nightmare, they return to haunt me.

The past will not let me alone. A monster has me in its clutches and tortures me with memories. I must go on and on, living through the agony and degradation of those years that destroyed my world of love and dreams.

As soon as wealth came into his hands, his ambitions soared. He saw himself a great power. I no longer figured in his plans. The girl who had given him her youth, everything, when he was poor, now bored him. He had used me, and now he wanted to cast me off, a broken toy on the doorstep of the world.

Before he had been insanely jealous of me. I dared not look at another man. He required of me the adoration of a slave bound to him body and soul, and I gave it. He was the center of my universe and I was content to worship at his feet. To be with him was enough, but he added to my happiness by the little attentions that so appeal to a woman. It is a man's consideration in the little things that attract and hold a woman.

Later, when he became brutal and beastly, it was the memory of these things that kept me from hating him.

This memory began to cling to his neglect when it began. I clung to my illusions. I could not bear to have love's dreams shattered. I kept excusing him to myself. I held to the hope that my love would bring him back if I waited long enough.

I had no friends in Ardmore then. The only persons with whom I came in contact were his friends and business associates. He did everything possible to break my heart and yet my love excused him. Even when my health broke down under his contempt and ill treatment, my heart held hope. He kept me in two shabby, dark rooms in a hotel here and there I lay crying my eyes out, virtually a prisoner, and he, my keeper.

"Why did I stay as the years grew? Because I still clung to the memories of the past and always hope hobbled in my heart that his old love for me would return."

But if I had left him what was there before me? I was "damaged goods" in the eyes of the world—my virtue, my good name, everything that makes a woman precious to a good man gone. I have been pictured as a woman who wanted money. If he had given me all the millions in the world, could they have brought back my virtue, my good name?

The women have been wonderful to me because they understand. They understand as no man ever can.

Society condones a man who casts off a woman to fade and wither after he has robbed her of her sweetness and bloom. On the woman, society brands the scarlet letter.

To be haunted always by ghosts of the past, can anyone conceive greater punishment?

I was only seventeen when I was lured to sin by a worldly man, old enough to be my father. But I could never rise in politics in Oklahoma or attain a place of public honor. My past would be hated. If ever I do anything worth while my past will be dragged out.

But the man who entered the garden of my life and trampled on my dreams, leaving behind only crushed hopes and a broken heart, society honored. He rose high in public life and all paid him tribute.

And, now, while I am helpless, am I to be persecuted because others with interests involved in my case have millions and power behind them?

It is not true I cowardly ran away while he lay dying. I wanted to stay in Ardmore and tell the truth as I shall tell it on the witness stand. I had nothing to fear from the truth. I was made to go to avoid scandal.

I do not ask pity. I do not even ask tolerance—all I ask is justice.

I have bidden girls to take a moral lesson from my life. I have learned from cruel experience that the woman who gives herself out of wedlock wears heavier bonds than were even forced at any marriage altar.

Flowers Express Hopes.

There are three flowers which stand out the promise of hope. One is the morning glory, and the others are the lavender and the pansy. The morning glory stands in a little field which grows from the sea to the stars in bright and bluish to May. The color of the flower is a pale blue. The petals are small and numerous, and the duty of the flower is to bloom. The lavender is generally white, sometimes a small deep crimson. It bears a small fruit with a yellow pulp. The last is similar to that of

LANDIS CHARGES DIVIDE COMMITTEE

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Feb. 22.—Action on the impeachment charges against Judge K. M. Landis is being permitted to drag because of differences of opinion among members of the house judiciary committee.

Chairman Voelcker, who was expected to have called a meeting of the committee today, announced there would be none. He stated further that he did not know whether there would be a meeting of the committee during the week.

Several members of the committee, while not believing that the charges presented by Representative Wetzel, afford legal ground for proceeding with the impeachment, are in favor of bringing out some kind of a report censuring Judge Landis for accepting and holding the position as professional baseball negotiator while retaining his position on the federal bench.

Others think that the only matter presented to the committee is that of the impeachment of Judge Landis and if they find that there is no charge sustaining the impeachment investigation or proceedings, the entire subject should be dropped.

UPTOWN IS DUG OUT.

Rigs and Shovelers Still Working Downtown.

The street department Tuesday afternoon completed the work of removing the piles of snow from the uptown business section and the main arteries of travel, and the twenty-two rigs that were employed in the work were laid off last evening. There are about fifteen rigs together with the board of public works big auto trucks at work on the downtown business section and lower Broadway.

The weather continues unsettled. On the ice fields in the Hudson river the Kinderhook Ice Company has had a force of two hundred men at work clearing off the snow and scraping off the ice, but if the storm continues the work will have to be done over again.

DIED.

OGHELTREE.—At Port Ewen, N. Y. Monday, February 21, 1921. Schaefer C. Ogheltree, aged 52 years. Funeral from his late residence at Port Ewen Thursday at 2 p. m. Relatives and friends are invited. Private interment in Wallkill cemetery. Kindly omit flowers.

ROTONDO CASE WAS DISMISSED

After a lively trial in police court this morning Judge Schirck dismissed the charge of assault in the third degree lodged against Joseph Rotondo by his wife, and discharged him from custody. The alleged assault was committed last week on 34th street while the Rotondos, who reside at No. 9 East Pierpont street, were returning from the movies. She claimed her husband hit her in the face and kicked her in the knee. In dismissing the charge Judge Schirck stated that the evidence showed that the acts complained of were a breach of the peace on the part of both man and wife, as the testimony showed that the wife had held the husband's hair pulling it while he was trying to push her away. Rotondo was represented at the trial by Judge McKenzie of Port Ewen. Mrs. Rotondo had no lawyer.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Mrs. Levi Elmendorf, 72 Clinton avenue, entertained at a luncheon on Washington birthday a number of friends. Those from out of town were the Misses Oakley of New Paltz and Miss Sheldon of Olive. The chaperones were Mrs. Elmendorf and Mrs. Mac Bartlett of Haverstraw. During the evening games were enjoyed.

Edworth-Edworth.

Arnold R. Edworth of Irvington, N. J., and Miss Amanda Edworth of No. 71 Hurley avenue were united in marriage on February 19 by the Rev. B. B. Seelye of the Fair Street Reformed Church.

Lowell Club Guest Day.

Guest day was observed by the Lowell Club on Tuesday, Washington's birthday, the club and its guests meeting at the home of Mrs. Wonderly. A delightful program had been arranged by the Program Committee, Mrs. T. G. Baragwanath, Mrs. W. D. Delaplane, Mrs. W. L. Steinert and Mrs. C. E. Wonderly, which included musical numbers and readings. Mrs. Morris favored the guests with several delightful vocal solos. Richard Meyer, violinist, entertained the guests with very pleasing violin solos. The vocal number being a vocal solo by Mrs. Morris, with violin obligato by Mr. Meyer. Mrs. A. H. Van Buren and Mrs. Wonderly were the accompanists, the club singing its club song. Then there were readings from Browning by Mrs. Lewis, from Kipling by Mrs. Teller, from Alfred Noyes by Mrs. Delaplane, while Mrs. Witter gave a most interesting resume of Gilbert Parker's "Right of Way."

At the close of the program, delicious refreshments were served. Next week the club will meet with Mrs. Cole at her home 132 Clinton avenue.

HOOPER CONSIDERING.

Harding, However, Got Impression He Would Accept.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Feb. 22.—Herbert Hoover, formally tendered the post of secretary of commerce in the next cabinet, gave President-elect Harding during their telephone conversation last night, assurances that the offer would have his earnest consideration. It was learned by the International News Service today. Hoover did not refuse the appointment and President-elect Harding received the impression that the former food administrator would probably become one of his cabinet advisers.

Derailment Shook Passengers.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Attleboro, Mass., Feb. 22.—Lives of 300 passengers on the "Quaker Express," Boston to Philadelphia, were jeopardized today when the engine tender and express car jumped the track of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, in East Junction today. Passengers were thrown about in the four Pullmans, coach and smoker. Many sustained minor injuries.

FULL SPEED SOON, SAYS FORD

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Detroit, Mich., Feb. 22.—"It is now only a question of a few weeks before our plants will be in full operation," Henry Ford, Detroit automobile manufacturer, declared today.

Mr. Ford is optimistic over the business outlook, especially in his line of production. "When do you expect your factories will be running in full capacity?" he was asked. "Seventy eight or seventy nine thousand orders for next month doesn't seem as though it would be very long before our business reaches normal," Mr. Ford replied.

ABOUT THE FOLKS.

Janzen Hasbroeck of Elizabeth, N. J., is visiting friends in this city.

William Hoffmann of the Jacob Hoffmann Brewing Company was in Kingston Tuesday on business.

Walter Foster has returned from Albany and is visiting at the homes of his parents and grandparents.

Mrs. Kelly was removed from her home, Strand and Hasbroeck avenue, to the Benedictine Sanitarium in the ambulance yesterday.

Watson M. Freer, 2nd, of this city, is the guest of his uncle, G. Frank Van Keuren, postmaster at Albion and town clerk of Shandaken.

Miss Fannie Duely, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Duely of Lucas avenue, who had a very serious operation performed at the Kingston City Hospital, is doing nicely.

Superintendent B. Strobel of the Jacob Ruppert estate, Lynwood, at Rhinebeck, Mr. Lawler and George Asher were the guests at Fischer's Hotel on the Strand Tuesday.

Mrs. H. A. Snyder of Nyack and daughter Miss Aloise Snyder, who have just returned from Serbia, are spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. A. Christians of Henry street.

SCHOOL NO. 6 WON BIG MEET

Annual Athletic Meet With 18 Teams and 1,000 Boys

Big Public Meet at Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium

Registration of over 200 boys from the several grammar schools in the most successful of all. There was a city and besides being represented in the competition there were large groups of cheerers from each school.

School No. 6 won the team honors and now holds a claim on the trophy with Schools No. 4 and No. 8.

The boys from No. 6 scored well in all events and drew first place in most of the contests except the potato race, in which they lost out. No other school had a chance at a score in the broad jump as the Brigham boys scored all three places. Lyons of School No. 6 established new records in the running high jump by jumping 4 feet 1 inch, while Wells of the same school broke the previous "chinning the bar" record by drawing himself up 27 times.

Kanner of School No. 3 was awarded the individual prize for scoring the greatest number of points. The prize consisted of a silver medal. Those winning first, second or third places received ribbons as their awards. Summaries:

Potato Race—1st, Rice. School No. 2; 2nd, Kanner. School No. 3; 3rd, Powell. School No. 5.

Running Broad Jump—1st, Lyons. School No. 6; 2nd, Powell. School No. 5; 3rd, Powell. School No. 5.

Climbing—1st, Wells. School No. 6; 2nd, Powell. School No. 5; 3rd, Powell. School No. 5.

Far of War—Won by School No. 6; 2nd, School No. 8; 3rd, School No. 2; 4th, Schools Nos. 5 and 7 tied for this position.

The relay race was won by School No. 2, while the other schools finished in the following order: Schools No. 6, 5, 8 and 3.

The team scores:

School No. 6 18,074

School No. 8 15,570

School No. 3 10,723

School No. 5 8,284

School No. 2 8,205

School No. 4 8,289

School No. 7 2,153

School No. 1 0

The individual score which Kanner of School No. 3 made was a most remarkable feat for the grammar school lad as he scored 380 points out of a possible 400 tally.

Next year the meet will probably be fought out harder than ever, as there are three schools each holding a leg on the cup. The school which wins the meet three times keeps the trophy.

GRAIL KNIGHTS HELD BANQUET

Trinity M. E. Church held their first annual banquet since their reorganization on Washington's birthday in the church parlors. The rooms were attractively decorated with American flags and red, white and blue crepe paper streamers. The tables were arranged in the form of a "K" to represent the knights, and were artistically decorated with the national colors, carnations and roses.

As the candles were lighted and the members and their invited guests took their places at the tables it formed an attractive picture and one which will long be remembered by those present. The following menu was faultlessly served and thoroughly enjoyed:

Tomato Bisque

Salad

Celery

Roast Turkey

Mashed Potatoes

Giblet Gravy

Mashed Turnips

Jelly

Home Made Apple Pie

Nut Meats

Coffee

The toastmaster, Fred L. Van Deusen, called upon the following members who responded with short speeches, the Rev. P. C. Woyant, John Hart and Co. J. N. Roe & Co. all of New York City gave preference. Call morning, 9 to 11. J. W. Van Vechten & Son, New York State Sales Agency, 100 Broadway, New York, N. Y. Phone 708-7.

It was one of the most successful banquets that the Knights have ever held and one that was heartily enjoyed by all present. A good deal of credit must be given to the banquet committee, George E. Lowe, Edward Hillis and Lester Finley, for their work to make it the most successful banquet ever held by the Grail.

THE WORK BREECHERS.

But Principal Fox of Poughkeepsie Made Objections.

A mild furor was created at the Poughkeepsie High School Monday morning by the appearance of a pair of riding breeches. Intrinsically the breeches were not of so much importance, but that they were worn by one of the young women students gained them a certain prominence.

When the matter was reported to J. Schuyler Fox, principal of the school, he summoned the wearer to his office, and advised that she return home and don more generally accepted school attire. It is reported that she refused, and that a conference to which members of the family, Superintendent Moon and A. C. Root, president of the board of education, were invited was called. The officials upheld the ruling of Mr. Fox, and the family accepted it, with the result that the young woman appeared at the afternoon session in accordance with their ideas of dress.

YANKEES HAVE GREAT MATERIAL

Squad Starts South Friday—'Murderers' Howl' Looks Even More Murders This Year and Huggins Has 13 Pitchers to Choose From.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 23.—The big spring drive of the ambitious New York Yankees starts Friday.

The Yankees will set the pace for rival clubs in the way of starting a squad of pretentious proportions toward Dixie when a dozen or more players leave here for Shreveport, La., headed by Scout Joe Kelly. Active work in the Yanks' new camp is scheduled to start next Monday morning.

Manager Miller Huggins, who will go south from his Cincinnati home, believes his 1921 Yanks will capture the pennant and his hopes will be greatly bolstered if Home Run Baker returns to the team.

With Babe Ruth, Bobby Roth and Baker in the batting order, not to mention hitters like Wally Pipp and Roger Peckinpaugh, to back them up, Huggins' team will have a batting array surcharged with "T. N. T." But Huggins is counting almost as strongly on his pitchers.

When all of the Yankee hurlers get into camp at Shreveport the manager will have thirteen slabs to watch. He gave evidence of his optimism regarding the Yank pitchers when he said:

"I expect wonderful things from that pitching staff of mine this year. Shawkey, the league's leading pitcher, may, who should improve over 1920, Quinn, veteran spitballer, and Collins, Hoyt and Harper, not to mention a host of young fellows, look mighty good to me. I look for Rip Collins to have an exceptionally good year and if the others can only do what they should do, well, one out of the world's series ought to come to New York next fall."

Babe Ruth and the veteran members of the Yank's battery staff are at Hot Springs, Ark., where they will remain a week or ten days before reporting at Shreveport.

STEERING ARMY AND NAVY BILLS

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 23.—Republican leaders of the senate held an informal series of conferences today to see if they could unscramble the legislative snarl threatening the passage of the army and navy appropriations bills.

Senator Curtis of Kansas, the Republican whip, expressed confidence in the ability of the senate to dispose of both bills. Other Republican leaders are not so sanguine. One of them predicted even if the army bill is passed, it is extremely doubtful if the navy bill can be prevented from going over until the new congress.

It is pointed out that both bills are subject to debate and even though the senate succeeds in passing them the danger of their being deadlocked in conference is to be avoided.

The senate resumed consideration today of the agricultural appropriations bill with the hope entertained by Senator Gronna, Republican, North Dakota, chairman of the senate agriculture committee, in charge of it that it would be passed by night fall.

Senate military affairs committee is expected to report the army bill during the day. The senate naval affairs committee is seeking to complete its work on the naval bill. The fortifications appropriations bill is also due to be reported soon.

Senator Curtis and other Republican leaders are adopting every means at their disposal to comply with President-elect Harding's repeatedly expressed wish that all appropriation bills be disposed of before he assumes office, but the controversial features of the army and navy bills are proving stumbling blocks.

Senator Penrose, Republican, Pennsylvania, chairman of the senate finance committee, expressed the opinion the conferees on the emergency tariff bill would reach an agreement before the end of the day.

The sugar and wheat duties inserted in the bill by the senate are being opposed by the house conferees and the fear is entertained by Representative Fordney, Republican, of Michigan, chairman of the ways and means committee, that the house itself may refuse to concur in them.

Last Night's Fight Results.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

At New York—Louis Bogash and Soldier Bartfield boxed a 15-round draw.

Midget Smith knocked out George Lee, Chinese boxer, in the ninth round.

AFTER ANY ILLNESS THE BLOOD IS WEAK

If You Get Well Slowly, Try Building Up Your Blood.

It's Blood That Feeds The Body

Pepto-Mangan Creates Rich, Red Blood, Changes Pale Complexions to Bloom of Health.

A serious illness, even a cold that is hard to shake off, can reduce the blood to a weak, watery condition which keeps the normal strength and vigor from coming back.

This poor physical condition brings on a helpless, discouraged mental condition which rich, red blood can restore.

Pure blood should be rich in iron which Nature supplies to some extent in food. But often through faulty digestion or improper diet you don't get the needed iron, and your blood, on which your health depends, grows weaker and weaker.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan enriches the blood, increases the red blood cells and supplies the ingredients that bring a quick response in vigor, vitality, and fine color.

Physicians recommend Gude's Pepto-Mangan. When you order, be sure the word "Gude's" is on the package. Without "Gude's" it is not Pepto-Mangan. Furnished in both liquid and tablet form. For sale by all druggists.—Advertisement.

MILLER PRAISED

For Attitude Toward Efficient Men Whose Terms Expire.

Governor Miller's reappointment of Judge William D. Cunningham of Ellenville to the court of claims gives great satisfaction in other places besides Ulster County.

The Albany Knickerbocker-Press says editorially:

"Governor Miller is much to be praised for his reappointment of Judge Cunningham to the court of claims. Judge Cunningham has been an able and valuable judge, and the state needs his services."
